Abstract:

Headings are not bold, bold them.

Background: In this section, the goal does not need to be discussed in detail. Change the title of this section to background. In one sentence, state the necessity of the task and state the goal in general.

Methodology: change "method" to "methodology". Enter the name of the statistical software and the version used, the confidence interval and the sampling method.

Conclusion: This section has nothing to do with the results and seems to be a general and useful comment.

Introduction:

In the introduction, the need for a study is not well explained and the written text does not follow a logical and coherent process for reviewing previous articles and studies.

To explain the need for this plan, you could look at the devastating effects of time spent on caregivers on life satisfaction and overall mental health, and use studies that determine the negative impact of this degradation on the quality of care for these patients.

In this section, you should present your hypothesis or the main question of the study.

In this section, it should be specified what exactly we know in this area, what we do not know and what we want to know by doing this research ?!

Materials & Methods:

Mention the exact p-value.

Discussion:

In the discussion section, you could discuss the destructive effects of time imbalance so that you can make better suggestions in the conclsion section.

Conclusion:

Explain future orientations in studies in more detail and make more suggestions based on the results. You have devoted most of this section to retelling the results.
