

Thank you for the opportunity to review the revised manuscript entitled "Fitts' Law-Based Identification of Motor Development Stages for the Upper Limb: Proof of Concept in Three Age Groups".

I have carefully examined the authors' revised version and tracked changes in response to my initial review. I am pleased to confirm that all suggestions and concerns have been thoroughly addressed: the introduction has been enhanced with recent literature and a clearer explanation of clinical implications; methodological clarifications have been added, particularly regarding calibration procedures and age group selection; statistical results and figure legends have been improved for clarity; the discussion now includes a well-developed exploration of clinical applications and acknowledges key study limitations.

The conclusion effectively ties the findings to the initial research objectives and outlines thoughtful directions for future work.

The manuscript is now well-structured, scientifically sound, and clearly written. I have no further revisions to suggest and fully recommend the article for publication in PeerJ.
